Scuba Diving

Thirty diving sites are spread over four areas: the Cape of Antibes, the Islands of Lérins, the bay of Golfe-Juan and the bay of Cannes. The diving areas cover a variety of terrain: overhangs, shallow waters, isolated rocks, rich in gorgonians and red coral. You may even come across conger eels, groupers and crawfish! From beginners to more experienced divers, there is something for everyone, especially as the sites that are between 10 and 45 minutes away by boat can be accessed whatever the weather.

The two clubs in Golfe-Juan offer beginners dives, known as "first-timers", exploratory dives and themed dives (night dives, marine biology dives, etc). Courses are available and teaching is given by fully qualified and safety-conscious instructors who are ever keen to pass on their love of diving and their in-depth knowledge of the underwater life in this area.
